

Kant's Ethical Theory

- I ought never to act except in such a way that I can also will that my maxim should become a universal law.
- Act as if the maxim of your action were to become by your will a universal law of nature.
- So act as to treat humanity, whether in your own person or in that of any other, in every case as an end in itself, never as means only.

	Universal Law	Universal Law of Nature	Humanity... an end in itself
Terminally ill
In a persistent vegetative state
No hope of recovery
Suffering unbearably
Voluntary
Physician-assisted (injection)			